

ICF Next Named A Leader Among Loyalty Technology Platform Providers

April 9, 2019

Agency Achieves Highest Possible Designation for Its Tally® Loyalty Platform

FAIRFAX, Va., April 9, 2019 /PRNewswire/ -- ICF Next, the integrated marketing and communications services group of ICF (NASDAQ:ICFI), announced today that its proprietary loyalty technology platform, Tally®, was named a "Leader" in loyalty technology platforms by leading global research and advisory firm Forrester Research. The "Leader" designation is the highest a company can attain in The Forrester Wave™: Loyalty Technology Platforms, Q2 2019.

"Clients are satisfied with the platform, its integration capabilities and its strong security environment but cite the commitment of ICF Next's people and resources as critical to their success," the report stated. "One reference explained this commitment means that 'we can think of our customers instead of worrying about the platform.'"

The platform and agency were evaluated across 28 criteria, and received the highest possible rating in 10 criteria: member profiles, tiers, fraud, testing and optimization, privacy and security, user experience, other professional services, vision, planned enhancements and revenue growth.

ICF Next continues to make major investments in Tally, improving features and underlying technologies to enhance integration, automation, security, simplicity of use and overall user experience.

"We believe this Forrester designation recognizes the strength of our commitment to providing a smart, intuitive loyalty platform designed to connect brands and customers through personalized experiences, at scale," said John Armstrong, president of ICF Next. "But we're also pleased by the recognition given to the Tally team as they are an important differentiator and drivers of our clients' success."
