ICF Services to be Provided Under New $100 Million ID/IQ Award

FAIRFAX, Va., Feb 16, 2011 (BUSINESS WIRE) --

ICF International (NASDAQ:ICFI), a leading provider of consulting services and technology solutions to government and commercial clients, has received a new multiple-award ID/IQ contract by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Public Health Service, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). ICF is one of three winners to provide global epidemiology and strategic information services, with an emphasis on activities under the U.S. President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief (PEPFAR). The contract has a capacity of $100 million and a term of one base year and four option years.

The scope of the contract calls for ICF to conduct capacity building, technical assistance, implementation, and/or other support services to support strategic information activities. These activities may include program monitoring and evaluation, surveillance and surveys, disease outbreak and epidemiologic investigation, statistics and modeling, health economics and finance analysis, and health information systems support, as well as other strategic information services.

"ICF combines expertise in domestic and international public health, information technology, and management consulting with experience managing large multitask contracts," said David Cotton, senior vice president for ICF International. "ICF has more than 20 years of experience supporting CDC, including working with the Global AIDS Program for the past 10 years and with PEPFAR since its inception."

ICF is in a position to leverage its extensive experience working in other global health areas such as malaria, maternal and child health, tuberculosis, and reproductive health. ICF is recognized as an experienced leader in designing and administering large demographic and health surveys around the world and applying sustainable approaches to building capacity in order to help CDC meet its global health goals.
